

Photovoltaic panel installation roof fraud

Overview

Did a salesperson knock on your door and promise free rooftop solar panels at no cost to you?

Or say you'll never have to pay another electricity bill because government programs, grants, or rebates cover your solar installation?

It's likely a scam. Scams, schemes and straight-up fraud abound in the dark underbelly of an otherwise light-filled industry. Here are red flags to look out for when. Solar panel fraud has become a growing concern in the United States, leaving many homeowners stuck with hidden fees, inflated energy bills, and contracts they never fully understood. As more families consider solar energy improvements, dishonest companies exploit the fine print in solar panel. But an emerging problem in the U. solar business that installs panels on homes risks slowing the effort to cut the country's emissions. Customer complaints against the country's residential rooftop solar industry have increased dramatically in recent years. While there are some government-funded solar. One year after a CBS News New York investigation looked into a local solar installer, New York City has filed what it calls a landmark lawsuit against Radiant Solar and its owner, William James Bushell.
